

UMANA by the Numbers: 2016 and 2017

Transparency is today's idea du jour, leading us to reflect on the status of our membership and direction UMANA has been taking for the last two years.

There is good news: active membership remains steady, bouncing on either side of 450 members in the U.S. and Canada. Bad news? We have 760 total names in our database – a lot of potential still out there. New members are replacing demographic losses due to retirement, relocation, and debilitation. There has been a resurgence of activity in many UMANA chapters, as well as interest in reactivating a few of the inactive branches.

Total UMANA changes for 2016-2017:

58 new applicants in 2016 and 2017
13 members known to have died

Activity in Canadian chapters continues to confound us, with a potentially large membership, especially in Ontario, electing to sit on the sidelines. Efforts to entice activity, such as accepting dues payment in Canadian funds, have not spurred reactivation of once-vital branches in Toronto or Montreal. We are very grateful for those Canadian members who stay involved.

The 2017 Assembly of Delegates held in Arlington, VA, successfully reviewed UMANA accomplishments and prepared the association for the next two years of vibrant activity.

Breakdown of new applicants 2016-2017:

27 – Students	11 – Affiliates
8 – Regular	6 – Residents
6 – Associates	0 – Pharmacists

Financially, as long as we hew to the accepted annual budget, UMANA is stable, with the optimistic dream that all of the recent student and resident applicants advance in their careers and become regular, full dues-paying members of UMANA.

As of this publication date, 312 members have paid dues for 2018. To you we say thanks! If you are still debating whether to pay or not, remember this: your support makes possible the growth and existence of the largest professional Ukrainian-American group in the Western Hemisphere! For 68 uninterrupted years, that's quite an accomplishment.

President's Message

There is much to discuss, making it hard to know where to start. As events unfold at a dizzying pace it's good to stop and reflect so we can begin to make sense of it all. Many of us attending the recent Kyiv Mohyla Foundation fundraisers in Chicago and New York had an opportunity to hear directly from our former UMANA colleague Dr. Ulana Suprun, Ukraine's Acting Minister of Health. Her observations are thus a good place to begin. She discussed her efforts to reform healthcare in Ukraine, starting with education, specialty training, and licensure. Simultaneously, Dr. Suprun has initiated foundational changes in healthcare delivery, quality control, and financing. Not surprisingly, these proposals have generated significant opposition, evoking recollections of debates here in the U.S., where healthcare remains far from a settled issue. UMANA members thus benefit from our own experience with systemic changes in healthcare delivery as we listen to the concerns expressed by our Ukrainian colleagues, echoing our own. A sentiment I often heard meeting with colleagues in Ukraine was some variation of, "We know things are in terrible shape now but we think these reforms are going to make things worse." This sounded not unlike my fellow UMANA members expressing deep dissatisfaction with medical practice, including burdensome regulations, low reimbursement, loss of autonomy, and demanding schedules.

Solutions are never easy to find, but the people I've seen doing best both here and in Ukraine are those that have rediscovered the core interests and values that first led them to medicine. Facilitating this process is something UMANA is in a position to do. The intensity of need and thus opportunity is greatest in Ukraine, but there might be important projects in the U.S. and Canada that would capture our members' interest. Dr. Suprun highlighted several areas of need, including medical education, especially in the specialties of emergency medicine, physical medicine and rehabilitation (physiatry), and PTSD. The modernization of Ukraine's emergency medicine system is a national priority; training and equipping of EMTs and paramedics is crucial. We are most fortunate to have our California colleague Dr. Yuriy Goy (goyhouse@aol.com) leading intensive training courses addressing these needs in cooperation with the Ministry of Health. Dr. Goy would welcome any assistance, ranging from teaching a class, to making a donation supporting student tuition, to collecting and sending equipment and supplies. Another opportunity exists with Dr. Luke Tomycz (tomyczluke@gmail.com), a member of our NY Metro branch, who continues to seek physicians interested in joining his Co-Pilot Project or perhaps mentoring residents or early career physicians for advanced training in their specialties. In Chicago, Dr. Myron Lewickyj (mlewyckyj@nwiea.com) is organizing a mission to the main hospital in Ivano-Frankivsk that encompasses most specialties.

This is but a sampling of projects and opportunities that are operating or planned. I apologize for any omissions. Due to so many initiatives, Dr. Suprun has requested that physicians interested in becoming involved coordinate their efforts with her staff at the Ministry of Health so that issues and regions of greatest need are targeted.

Finally, let me mention still another way to connect. In the heat of Ukraine's emotional healthcare debate, personal attacks have been directed at Dr. Suprun. Incredibly, these have often revolved around accusations that she is not actually a "real" licensed physician, eligible to practice in the U.S. (New York). Dr. Suprun would much appreciate letters of support directed to her at the Ministry of Health (moz.gov.ua) or to Olha Bohomolets (bohomolets.olha@rada.gov.ua), chair of the parliamentary committee overseeing the Health Ministry. While healthcare policy is a matter for Ukrainians to address, we can certainly speak to Dr. Suprun's standing as a capable, trusted colleague. As I sign off, let me ask all our members to join this discussion by passing along your reactions, ideas, and experiences.

Sincerely,
Andrew Ripecky, MD

Keynote speaker Dr. Boris

The recently published 'Combat and Operational Behavioral Health'

Leheta, president of AUMF, gave a heartfelt description of the many Ukrainian veterans and their "Long Road Home."

Special guests included the Ukrainian rock group Okean El'zy, president of the Ukraine-Canada Foundation Victor Hetmanczuk, president of the Ukrainian-American Civic Committee of Metropolitan Detroit Mrs. Vera Andrushkiv, Chief Development Officer of the Ukrainian Catholic Education Foundation (UCEF) Alexander Kuzma, and Defense Attaché to the Embassy of Ukraine in Washington, DC Major-General Volodymyr Havrylov.

NY Metro Branch

May 6, 2018 The NY Metro branch held a chapter meeting at the Ukrainian Institute of America in Manhattan to elect a new slate of officers for the upcoming 2 years. The election was spurred on by the naming of the then-current chapter President Peter Lenchur, MD to the post of president-elect of the National Office during the Assembly of Delegates in Mont Tremblant, Quebec in June 2017. To avoid any conflicts of interest, and free up Dr. Lenchur to concentrate on his new position, the chapter elected the following individuals.

President: Dr. Marta Lopatynsky

Vice President: Dr. Ariadne Bach

President Elect: Dr. Ruta Cholhan-Lenchur

Secretary: Dr. Luke Tomycz

Treasurer: Dr. Danylo Kuncio

Members at Large: Drs. Romko (Ronald) Liteplo, Victor

Gribenko, and Irena Karanetz

Dr. Ihor Fedoriw, past president of the Pennsylvania chapter, and Dr. George Goy, Southern California branch member, a large group of chapter members had the opportunity to meet with the acting Minister of Health of Ukraine, Dr. Ulana Suprun. Dr. Suprun was keynote speaker at the Excellence in Education Reception in support of Kyiv-Mohyla Academy, in New York's Ukrainian Institute of America. A productive discussion ensued with a variety of issues debated.

Ohio Branch

February 18, 2017, and June 3, 2017 Cleveland area UMANA members, the Cleveland Maidan Association, and the community at large, gathered to pack medical supplies for wounded soldiers in Ukraine, sending 86 packages weighing approximately 55 pounds each. Dr. Michael Samotowka and Dr. Ihor Zachary continued to organize medical supply packing events at MedWish Foundation at the Cleveland Clinic Foundation.

September 17, 2017 The Ohio Chapter held its biennial picnic at St. Pokrova grounds. It was well attended by current members, family, and guests. Good food and drink, socializing, and a short review of goals of UMANA from its inception to its current role in the community took place. Oleksandr Nechyporuk, who sustained a gunshot wound to this right knee during 2014 uprisings in Maidan, spoke, honoring his host family, Dr. Nestor, and Anizia Shust for their commitment and vital role in helping him three times in his treatment in Cleveland. He recently received a knee replacement and has regained ability to ambulate, returning to Ukraine to join his wife and three children.

Sadly, we report that several of our members passed into eternity: Drs. Daria Dubas Wojtyna, Chrystyna Nebesh-Jatsyshyn, and Joanna Sym-Lipsky.
